 The dangers of the time. Shakespeare.
TO OUTDATE. v. a. [out and date.] To antiquate.
 Works and deeds of the law, in those places, signify legal obedience, or circumcision, and the like judaical out-dated ceremonies; faith, the evangelical grace of giving up the whole heart to Christ, without any such judaical observances. Hanan.
TO OUTDO. v. a. [out and do.] To excel; to surpass; to perform beyond another.
 He hath in this action outdone his former deeds doubly. Shak.
 What brave commander is not proud to see
 Thy brave Melantius in his gallantry?
 Our greatest ladies love to see their corn
 Outdone by thine, in what themselves have worn. Waller.
 Heav'nly love shall outdo hellish hate,
 Giving to death, and dying to redeem,
 So dearly to redeem what hellish hate
 So easily destroy'd. Milton.
 Here let these who boast in mortal things,
 Learn how their greatest monuments of fame,
 And strength, and art, are easily outdone
 By spirits reprobate. Milton.
 An impetuous outdoes the original. L'Estrange.
 Now all the gods reward and bless my son;
 Thou hast this day thy father's youth outdone. Dryden.
 I must confess the encounter of that day
 Warm'd me indeed, but quite another way;
 Not with the fire of youth, but generous rage,
 To see the glories of my youthful age
 So far outdone. Dryden.
 The boy's mother desisted for not having read a system of logick, outdoes him in it. Locke.
 I grieve to be outdone by Gay,
 In my own humorous biting way. Swift.

 outerly, an inch behind the cutters. Grew's Museum.
OUTERMOST. adj. [superlative from outer.] Remotest from the midst.
 Try if three bells were made one within another, and air betwixt each; and the outermost bell were chimed with a hammer, how the sound would differ from a single bell. Bacon.
 The outermost compasses of a white body, have their various little surfaces of a specular nature. Boyle.
TO OUTFACE. v. a. [out and face.]
 1. To brave; to bear down by shew of magnanimity; to bear down with impudence.
 We shall have old swearing
 That they did give the rings away to men;
 But we'll outface them and out-swear them too. Shakespeare.
 Dost thou come hither
 To outface me with leaping in her grave?
 Be buried quick with her, and so will I. Shakespeare.
 Be fire with fire;
 Threaten the threaten; and outface the brow
 Of bragging horror. Shakespeare. King John.
 They bewrayed some knowledge of their persons, but were outfaced. Wotton.
 2. To stare down.
 We behold the sun and enjoy his light, as long as we look towards it circumspectly: we warm ourselves safely while we stand near the fire; but if we seek to outface the one, to enter into the other, we forthwith become blind or burnt. Ral.
TO OUTFAWN. v. a. [out and fawn.] To excel in fawning.
 In affairs of less import,
 That neither do us good nor hurt,
 And they receive as little by,
 Outfawn as much and out-comply. Hudibras.

 A while from hence: perchance outlandish ground
 Bears no more wit than ours; but yet more scant
 Are those diversions there which here abound. Denne.
 Tedious waste of time to sit and hear
 So many hollow compliments and lies,
 Outlandish flatteries. Milt. Par. Reg. b. iv.
 Upon the approach of the king's troops under General
 Wills, who was used to the outlandish way of making war, we put in practice passive obedience. Addison.
TO OUTLAST. v. a. [out and last.] To surpass in duration.
 Good housewives, to make their candles burn the longer, lay them in bran, which makes them harder; inasmuch as they will out-last other candles of the same stuff, half in half.
Bacon's Nat. Hist. N. 371.
 Summer's chief honour, if thou hadst outlasted,
 Bleak winter's force that made thy blossoms dry. Milt.
 The present age hath attempted perpetual motions, whose revolutions might outlast the exemplary mobility, and out-measure time itself. Bretton's V. Err.
 What may he hope'd,
 When not from Helicon's imagin'd spring,
 But sacred writ, we borrow what we sing?
 'Tis with the fabrick of the world begun,
 Elder than light, and shall outlast the fun. Waller.
OUTLAW. n. s. [out-laga, Saxon.] One excluded from the benefit of the law. A blunderer; a robber; a bandit.
 An outlaw in a castle keeps. Shakespeare. Hen. VI.
